Bleese at Boston.

Why should there be such a raising of hands on the part of the Governors at Boston because of ex-Governor Bleese's reiteration of his well-known sentiments as to the lynching of negroes is hard to understand. The Governors invited him there and they ought to have known what to expect. His performance at Richmond was enough of itself to put them on notice as to what they would probably get. To have put him down on the programme for a serious discussion of the treatment of criminals was nothing short of insulting to the State of South Carolina in view of the gross and outrageous manner in which he abused his powers in this regard during the four years of his incumbency. If those who asked him to speak on this subject did not know his record they should have done so.

Some of the Northern newspapers next day telegraphed to their correspondents in Charleston asking for statements as to the views of the people of this State upon ex-Governor or Bleese's utterances. The people of South Carolina gave their verdict in this matter just a year ago. The issue of the campaign which was fought out in South Carolina last summer was whether or not South Carolina should give its endorsement to the orgy of lawlessness which had been maintained throughout the Bleese administration. Its emphatic refusal to do so resulted in Bleese's defeat for the United States Senate and the election of Richard I. Manning as Governor. It was Mr. Manning whom the people of South Carolina delegated to represent them at the Boston conference of Governors. The fact that Bleese was there to bring discredit upon his State was no fault of theirs.

It looks to us as if the House of Governors is due somebody an apology. —News and Courier.

MEXICAN SITUATION GRAVE.

Battles between Americans and Mexicans Reported.

Brownsville, Tex., September 4:—With many Mexicans reported massed along the river where today's battle took place, sixty-five miles east of here, with communication between here and San Benito, in the raid district, all but broken by wire cutters, and a sudden calling to arms of all troops stationed at Fort Brown tonight, the situation growing out of today's hostilities has developed swiftly to one of grave possibilities.

Late tonight advices reached here that an attempt had been made to cut all the wires between this city and San Benito, nineteen miles north of here. All the wires leading to this direction but one were cut, severed strands being plainly visible. This was done a few miles north of the scene of Thursday's battle with troopers and Mexicans, but in the same section of country.

At Cavazo's Crossing, where the battle took place today, the river bank is reported tonight to be literally lined with Mexicans, although it is not known whether there are any Carranza soldiers among them.

The so-called Carranza lines run near the crossing and it is reported that a train brought many from Matamoros tonight to the scene of the fight. The place is closely guarded since the firing ceased at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

With at least ten known Mexicans dead and probably as many more bodies lying in the dense brush, the fight between a band of Mexican outlaws and eighty United States cavalrymen, aided by Texas Rangers and armed citizens, ended late this afternoon. One American trooper was wounded.

At 4 o'clock the Mexicans withdrew from the south bank of the Rio Grande and hid in the brush, apparently awaiting another opportunity to attack. The battle had been waged practically the entire day, the two forces firing at each other across the Rio Grande at a point four miles west of Old Hidalgo, Texas.

The injured American was John Salvini, private in Troop D, 3d cavalry, who sustained a serious wound in the left hip.

Capt J. C. McCoy, who commanded the American forces, returned to Mission tonight. He reported ten dead Mexicans could be seen from Texas side, and that probably as many more Mexicans had been killed in the brush by shots fired from the Texas side. Unofficial reports had placed the Mexican dead at twenty-five to thirty. The number of Mexicans engaged was placed at forty.

Resolutions Adopted by Williamsburg County Medical Society.

Whereas, It has been called to the attention of the Williamsburg County Medical Society that certain persons in Williamsburg county are engaged in the illegal practice of medicine, especially druggists, medical students and unlicensed men, These, one and all, are hereby notified that unless they discontinue such practice, the Medical Society of Williamsburg county will at once proceed through the State Board of Medical Counselors and through the courts to have the guilty parties punished to the full extent of the law.

Adopt Resolutions Against Illegal Practice of Medicine.

The regular meeting of the Williamsburg Medical association was held at the Kellahan Hotel here Monday at noon. The meeting was presided over by the president, Dr W V Brockington, while Dr J H Pratt acted as secretary pro tem. The following members were present: Drs I N Boyd, E O Taylor, W M O'Bryan, W G Gamble, C D Jacobs, W V Brockington, D C Scott, J H Pratt, E T Kelley, Theo Hemingway.

The meeting was a highly interesting one from the profession's view point as a number of interesting subjects were instructively discussed. It was brought to the attention of the association that a number of quacks were practicing medicine in Williamsburg county and with a view to putting an end to such practice warning resolutions were adopted by the association. These resolutions are published in another column of The Record today.

Dr W M O'Bryan was appointed delegate to the Pellagra conference which meets in Columbia next month, with Dr C D Jacobs as alternate.

The next meeting of the society will be held Monday, October 4.

Directions for Making Watermelon Table Sirup.

Remove the pink flesh and seeds from the rind of sweet, fully ripe melons. Crush the flesh with a potato masher or by running it thorough a meat chopper. Place the crushed pulp and seed in cloth bags and squeeze out the juice, which flows out readily. About five-sixths of the pulp will squeeze out as juice. About 13 gallons of the juice will make 1 gallon of sirup. This amount of juice can ordinarily be secured from 10 watermelons weighing from 22 to 25 pounds each.

The juice is then boiled down into a sirup in an ordinary preserving kettle. The juice boils without much foaming until it begins to thicken, when the fire should be slackened to prevent foaming and burning. The red coloring matter in the juice coagulates during boiling, and part of it rises to the surface, where it can be removed by skimming. The remainder floats about in the juice, forming red particles which gather near the top. Toward the last of the boiling the sirup must be watched constantly. If the housewife has a candy thermometer, she should take the sirup from the fire as soon as it reaches a temperature of 220 degrees F., otherwise she should let it cook until a small sample on cooling is about as thick as maple sirup.

When the boiling has finished, the sirup can be set aside to cool in covered vessels or can be poured while hot into cans or glass containers and sealed.

Where a cider press is available the melons can be cut into pieces and arranged on the press so that the pressure will extract the juice of the pulp before it presses the rind. The juice of the rind is not so rich in sugar, and experiments with rind juice alone indicate that it is not suitable for sirup.

If it is desired to make the sirup free from red particles, start the sirup boiling, and when some of the coagulated matter has been removed by skimming, transfer the juice to tall glass jars or other tall containers and allow it to settle and cool for a few hours. This allows the red particles to settle to the bottom. The upper part of the juice can then be poured off and boiled into sirup.
